The Syme family was originally designed in 2017 for the Art Center "Synesthésie", based in Saint-Denis — a suburb of Paris. The Art Center aims to gather diverse artistic personalities in order to create new and enriching situations. Based on that idea, Syme is an exploration of atypical associations of weights and styles. Syme Regular is the starting point of the family. It is quite an archetypal geometric sans-serif, giving the art center a practical asset for their daily use. When getting bolder, the typeface also gets wider, forcing radical graphic design choices. Checkout the other two members of this heteroclitic family: Syme Mono and Syme Tachilo. A Greek script designed by George Triantafyllakos has been added in March 2022. Syme was conceptualized by Bonjour Monde and designed by Lucas Descroix with the help of Arman Mohaddi. To contribute, see gitlab.com/bonjour-monde/fonderie/syme-typeface.
